

True Democracy depends upon an informed citizenry. With changes in technology. consolidation in newspapers, and with the limited number of television networks we have greatly reduced the sources for information.

Rather than allowing further consolidation of information sources, i would like to ask that you work to limit even the amount of influence any one company can have on the general public.

Information when it is completely bias to one view point becomes nothing more than propaganda. Haven't we seen enough governments, dependent on propaganda, fail?

Thank You.
Darral Seekatz